Man charged after swimming in shark tank

The tank at the Aquarium is open at the top. / NICOLAUS CZARNECKI, METRO

Gone fishin'. No animals were harmed after a man took a dip at the aquarium.

A Quincy man is in hot water after he allegedly jumped into the New England Aquarium's centerpiece, a 200,000 gallon tank that is home to hundreds of Caribbean fish, as well as coral, sea turtles, stingrays and sharks.

Stephen Pellegrine, 51, was arrested Thursday evening after staff members say he snuck into the aquarium without paying and jumped into the four-story salt water basin. Aquarium staff demanded that he get out of the water, but he allegedly swam around for "several minutes" before complying. Staff members told Fox 25 that Pellegrine appeared intoxicated.

"Fortunately, the sharks had already been fed," Suffolk District Attorney Spokesman Jake Wark said in an email on Sunday.

Pellegrine had a not-guilty plea entered on his behalf Friday in Boston Municipal Court to charges of trespassing and disorderly conduct. He was held on $1,500 cash bail and ordered to undergo a drug and alcohol evaluation — and to stay away from the aquarium. He is due back in court on July 23.

BARBARA ANTHONY

Each month, Undersecretary of Consumer Affairs and Business Regulation Barbara Anthony will answer questions from Metro readers. Send them to consumer.communications@state.ma.us with "Ask the Undersecretary" in the subject line.

FIND AN HONEST ONLINE REVIEW

I was looking for a spa to visit with my mom and found one with great reviews on Yelp claiming that they had the lowest prices. Unfortunately, the service was terrible and the prices were way more expensive in person. Did Yelp lie to us?

One of the risks of using a website like Yelp to check on the quality of a business is that anyone can write reviews — including the business owners themselves or someone that the business has paid to write reviews.

You might find reviews written with such extreme language that they couldn't possibly have been written by a consumer. Keep an eye out for strange or incorrect spelling and grammar. That is usually a sign that the review is fraudulent.

A good way to check if a review is legitimate is to click through to the reviewer's account history; there you can see if they have left other reviews or are only singing the praises of this business.

It is always a good idea to check on the legitimacy of a business. Call the Office of Consumer Affairs and Business Regulation at 617-973-8787 to find out if a business has received many complaints.

new apartment. Lately, it has not been fully heating food and sometimes it completely shorts outs. Is there anything I can do to get my money back or get a new microwave?

Six months is a very short life for a microwave or any appliance; it may have been defective from the start.

The Massachusetts implied warranty law says that every purchase made comes with the protection that it will work, as intended, for a reasonable amount of time.

I suggest finding the receipt and calling the store to see if they will let you return it. If they give you a hard time, write a 30-day demand letter to the retailer.

This letter is your opportunity to take action against sellers who make false claims about their products.

Take a look at the Implied Warranty section in my office's Consumer University booklet at www.mass.gov/ocabr/consumer-rights-and-resources/consumer-protection/shopping/shopping-rights/shopping-rights.html.

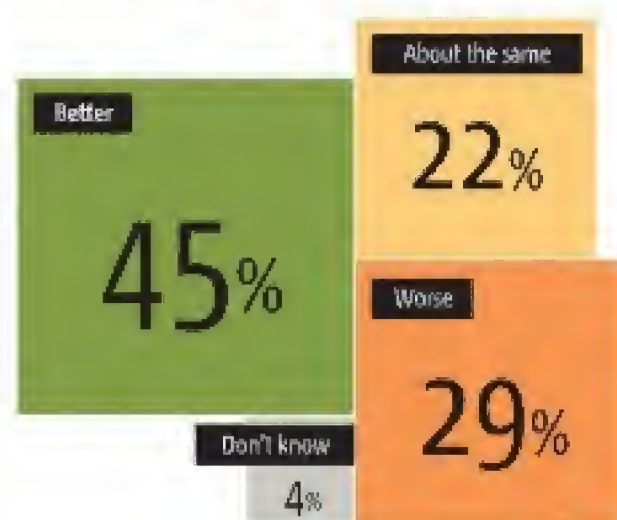

Economy is improving, but confidence isn't

In a Boston Globe poll, residents say their personal financial situation is the same or worse than a year ago, but the majority say they feel set for the future.

Compared to one year ago, do you believe your personal financial situation is better, worse, or about the same?

Compared to your parents when they were your age, do you believe your personal financial situation is better, worse, or about the same?

Do you dine out more, less, or about the same amount as you did one year ago?

Thinking about when your children are your age, do you think they will be better off than you are financially, worse off, or about the same?

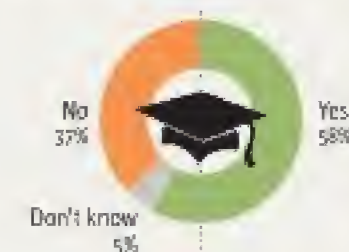

Do you think the expensive cost of living in Massachusetts is worth it, or not?

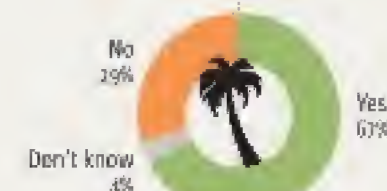

Planning for the future

Do you feel like you have a solid plan for paying for your children's college education?

Do you feel like you have a solid plan for retirement?

Do you feel like you have enough savings for an unexpected job loss or an unforeseen negative financial event?

Has the rising cost of basic household items, such as gas and groceries, created financial stress for you?

Do you ever worry about falling behind and not being able to pay your bills in a given month?

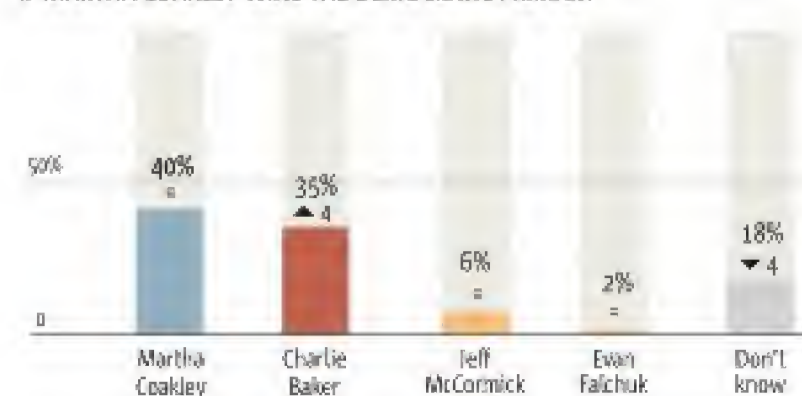

In the last year, have you delayed a major purchase, like a vacation, car, or major household appliance?

Spielberg faces close encounters of the dumbest kind

In what seems like a hard-to-believe plot in a Steven Spielberg movie, Facebook user Jay Branscomb made the most of recent outrage over rich people posting photos of themselves and the rare animals they've killed by posting a photo from the set of "Jurassic Park" featuring Spielberg and a mechanical Triceratops with the caption, "Disgraceful photo of recreational hunter happily posing next to a triceratops he just slaughtered. Please share so the world can name and shame this despicable man." The humorous image was shared more than 33,000 times. Here's the thing, though: There are a lot of gullible people on the

They really said this

- "One day we realize that we are killing all animals on this planet and we need them to survive. But, when we realize it will be too late."
- "He's a disgusting inhumane p—. I think zoos are the best way to keep these animals safe. A—holes like this piece of s— are going into these beautiful animals' homes and killing them. It's no different to someone coming into your home and murdering you. I'm not watching any of your movies again, ANIMAL KILLER."
- "I did not know that Steven Spielberg is a dinosaur hunter. I am not only outraged, but disgusted!!"
- "Why did he kill such a rare animal?"

Internet. Like, a lot. And a lot of them thought the image was real. Maybe they also thought "Jurassic Park" was a documentary? Here are some of the best responses, some of which we really hope are sarcastic.

Bad satire is the new black

And because online hoaxes, no matter how ridiculous, seem to keep dominating social media, we have to mention this one: Don't worry, "Orange Is the New Black" fans, your favorite show about women in prison hasn't actually been canceled. A site that's apparently supposed to specialize in satire called Empire News posted a story over the weekend that Netflix had canned the Emmy-nominated series, which is currently filming its third season. Fans online, naturally, freaked out, because that's what the Internet is for. We assume everyone was supposed to know it was a hoax because of this patently ridiculous quote at the end of the article attributed to Netflix CEO Reed Hastings: "A woman's place is in the home, in the kitchen, taking care of children. A woman in jail? How does anyone watch this show in the first place?" Guys: If there's a dinosaur or an extremely unlikely cancellation, it's a hoax.

We'll definitely be seeing these ladies next season. / GETTY IMAGES

FILM 8

Andy Serkis returns to the "Ape" series as its mammal protagonist. The finished product: Serkis becomes chimp leader Caesar (inset).

SERKIS: GETTY IMAGES; CAESAR: WETA

The man without a face

Interview. You know "Dawn of the Planet of the Apes" star Andy Serkis. You just may not know it.

He's the biggest movie star you don't know by face (and maybe name): British actor Andy Serkis is the performer who was motion-captured to portray Gollum in the "Lord of the Rings" and "Hobbit" films, the titular super-gorilla in Peter Jackson's "King Kong" and, these days, Caesar in the current "Planet of the Apes" reboot series. "Dawn," the franchise's latest, finds mo-cap technology at its best-so-far — which is good, as Serkis will be using it extensively for his directorial debut, "The Jungle Book."

Like the Tolkien films, the effects are done by the New Zealand company WETA. Do you work closely with them in post-production to get those subtleties of movement and facial expressions?

No. That used to be the case. For Gollum, that was the case, because when we did Gollum it was a slightly different system. My performance was filmed, as it is now, but then the animators basically copied all facial expressions afterward. So the animators' job was to literally match every nuance of my facial expressions. In the "Lord of the Rings" days, I used to talk to the animators afterward and re-enact bits for them. But today, 14 years later, the advancement of technology being what it is, the actors drive the facial capture. With the number of reference cameras on our faces, a lot of the work is done for them. Besides, our relationship spans 14 years. They've seen every single facial muscle of mine move in every single direction, and they've had to read every single underlying emotion in my face.

Do you find your acting approach changes doing live-action or mo-cap?

The acting process is no different whatsoever. If I was to play Gollum in a 21st-century setting, and he was on the street, I wouldn't play him any differently than if I was playing him in Middle Earth. But in terms of the backstory, the emotional content of the character, the approach is the same. So for a primal ape, you have to learn physical ape behavior and movements. What this all adds up to is acting, really, and it doesn't matter whether you're wearing a costume or makeup, or if you're putting on a unitard and a head-mounted camera.

Cooking with Jessica Alba

Easy recipes. The super-fit celeb and mom gets creative with coconut water.

There are certain celebrities whose bodies are so close to perfection that you can't help but wonder: What the heck does she eat? Jessica Alba is one of those people, and we had to know her secret. Alba revealed to us that one of her secrets is cooking with Zico Premium Coconut Water. We joined her in the kitchen and got her to teach us three easy recipes.

EMILY LAURENCE
@EmLaurence
emily.laurence@metro.us

Visit Metro.us for two more recipes from Jessica Alba using coconut water.

Recipe. Kale salad with coconut water vinaigrette

"What's great about this salad is that you can add any kind of fruit to it," Alba tells us. If you've struggled with making kale at home, so has she. "Whenever I made kale, it was always really tough. What I learned is to massage the dressing into the kale."

Directions: Combine all ingredients except almonds and blackberries into a large bowl and massage kale with the vinaigrette until leaves become soft and dark green. Toss sliced fruit with dressed kale. Garnish with blackberries and sliced almonds.

Ingredients

- 1 bunch kale, washed; remove stems and ribs
- 1 peach, sliced
- 1 plum, sliced
- 1 nectarine, sliced
- ½ cup blackberries
- ½ cup sliced almonds

For vinaigrette:

- ¼ cup Zico Premium Coconut Water
- 2 teaspoons fresh lemon juice
- 2 teaspoons olive oil
- 1 teaspoon salt
- ½ teaspoon black pepper

Digital etiquette for the smartphone generation

Workplace dilemmas.
 Emily Post's family is bringing etiquette to the 21st century.

LAKSHMI GANDHI
 @LakshmiGandhi
 lakshmi.gandhi@metro.us

Digital ethics

To friend or not to friend?

Think hard about whether you want to add your co-workers on Facebook. "While typically most of us have always bonded with our co-workers, it's really different today," Lizzie Post points out. "Previously, it was very controlled in what you allowed your co-workers to see [about your life outside of work]," she says.

"You have to decide what works for you. You can always tell a co-worker, 'I had to make a decision and I decided not to mix my work and personal lives.'"

Lizzie Post sits, center, with family members and co-authors Anna Post, Peter Post and Daniel Post Senning. JESSICA GRANT

Emily Post made a name for herself in the early 1900s as a world-renowned expert on etiquette and manners, advising readers on everything from making polite conversation to the right way to host an afternoon tea. Several generations later, her descendants are continuing her legacy with a 21st-century twist — by advising people on life in the digital age.

"It's kind of unbelievable the leaps and bounds we have made in just the last few years and how much digital usage has increased," says Lizzie Post, Emily's great-great-granddaughter, and one of the authors of the latest edition of "Emily Post's The Etiquette Advantage in Business." We asked Post for her take on modern social media dilemmas many of us face in the workplace.

Should you accept that LinkedIn request?

With the popularity of LinkedIn, it's common to get all sorts of connection requests from everyone from elementary school friends to your neighbors. "I don't respond to people on LinkedIn that I don't know well or that I haven't worked with closely," says Post of her own personal policy. "For people like high school friends, unless I know your work, I decline the request."

What if you don't want to write that recommendation?

"I don't recommend friends," says Post. "It's one thing to be friends with you, but that doesn't mean that I know how you work. With endorsements, it's a little bit different. If I have seen your blog and have read your book, then I feel like I can do it." Saying no is always an option, she says.

What should you say to your friend who constantly complains on Facebook?

Many of us have a close friend who constantly complains about their jobs online. "It puts something negative out there, and it's most likely something like 'My boss sucks,'" says Post. Many people don't realize the impression they are making. "The best way to handle it is to say, 'I'm your friend and I've seen lately that you've been complaining a lot on Facebook,'" says Post. "Then just say 'I know people who have been caught by that before and I don't want that to happen to you.'"

Cancer | June 21-July 22. Getting the whole family involved in home decoration or renovations will make the work go much faster. There is sure to be a job for everyone regardless of age or skill level.

Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Family discord will lead to a dilemma. You will be able to steer clear of conflicts if you keep an open mind and are willing to compromise.

Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Keep a lid on your temper. If you become frustrated with everyone around you, do something that will keep you occupied and out of trouble. It's better to be safe than sorry.

Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. You will be restless if you have too much idle time. Plan an inexpensive outing. Bowling, a nature walk, or a trip to an art gallery or museum won't blow your budget.

Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. No matter what you do, you'll face opposition. Don't take criticism to heart. Do the best you can, and refuse to engage with someone looking for a fight.

Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Distance yourself from interfering friends or relatives. If you meddle, you will only aggravate lingering control issues. Follow your heart and bypass someone's negativity.

Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Spend some time and money on yourself or your surroundings. If you are too giving to others, there may not be enough left over.

Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. You will be taken aback by some unanticipated changes in your living arrangements. Don't overreact or become anxious. The results are likely to turn in your favor as time passes.

Bee aware of pesticides

Working with Toxics Action Center has opened my eyes to the issue of neonicotinoid pesticides in supposedly bee-friendly plants. As a volunteer coach for my local Girls On the Run chapter near my college, I took it upon myself to work with my third- through fifth-grade girls to plant a garden. After reading the report "Gardeners Beware," I am now terrified that our small garden plot that was such a wonderful experience for these young inner-city girls may be harming the local bees. I cannot express my concern and disdain for the companies that are allowing consumers to unknowingly poison bees.

Violent cycle

It was wrong for Palestinian terrorists to murder three Israeli teens, it was wrong for Zionist terrorists to murder a Palestinian teen and for the Israeli gestapo to beat a Palestinian-American teen; it's wrong for Hamas to fire rockets at Israeli civilian targets; it's wrong for the IDF to fire missiles at Palestine civilian targets; it's wrong for Palestinians to deny Israel's right to exist; it's wrong for Israel to illegally occupy Palestinian West Bank land and deny the Palestinians statehood. Until both sides start doing what's "right," the cycle will continue.

Don't listen to polls

We all can agree that "polls" mean zilch. Both Hitler and Stalin were very popular in all polls, because the people had no clue what they were really doing and the press aggrandized them. I dare you to find me ONE Republican who says they love that Reagan tripled the national debt. Heck, find me one Republican who loves him arming Iran illegally! And most of us liberals despise Obama.

Anthony stays with Knicks

Carmelo Anthony is just the latest NBA superstar to spread the wealth (of superstars), declining to try and win a championship in Miami or Chicago and instead telling Knicks fans that "through it all, my heart never wavered." He will return to his hometown team, just as LeBron James did returning to Cleveland earlier this weekend.

Pierce signs with Wizards

Former Celtics great Paul Pierce is eschewing Kevin Garnett and Brooklyn for a chance at a title with the young Wizards.

Pierce, who was an All-Star 10 times in Boston, reportedly signed for two years and $11 million. He tweeted about the move early Sunday.

He joins a roster led by John Wall and Brad Beal, which went 44-38 in 2013-14 and advanced to the second round. METRO

Germany earns Cup with extra-time goal

World Cup. Mario Gotze scored the lone goal in the 113th minute to lift Germany to its fourth World Cup title all time.

It felt like a scene we had seen before.

A scoreless deadlock, extra time dwindling away and penalty kicks on the horizon.

The World Cup was just under 10 minutes away from being decided by penalties — and then Mario Gotze bounced the ball off his chest in the 113th minute and fired a shot past Argentina's goalie Sergio Romero to give Germany a 1-0 advantage, one that would hold through the rest of extra time.

Gotze was a substitute for veteran forward Miroslav Klose — who broke the record for most all-time goals in the World Cup in the semifinals — in the 88th minute.

The Germans posted an impressive 18 goals in the World Cup and handed Argentina its third World Cup finals setback.

The match was portrayed as Lionel Messi vs. the Machine, but Argentina's three-time FIFA Ballon d'Or winner

Mario Gotze has already won three German league championships and the World Cup at just 22 years old. / GETTY IMAGES

Handing out hardware

Here's another notable award that was handed out after Germany won the Cup.

- Germany's Manuel Neuer beat out Tim Howard for the Golden Glove (best goalkeeper).

for Player of the Year was mostly quiet Sunday.

Nonetheless, he was given the Golden Ball for the tournament's best player despite having no goals and just one assist after group play.

Argentina struggled to score after the opening round, netting just two goals in four games. It was no different on Sunday as they had just two shots on goal compared to seven for the Germans.

Messi had one last chance to play hero in the final seconds on a free kick off a penalty committed by Bastian Schweinsteiger, but he sailed the free kick from just outside the penalty box well over the frame.

The Germans dealt with two surprise injuries — one immediately before the game and one during it. Starting midfielder Sami Khedira injured his calf in warmups just 15 minutes before the game and had to be replaced by Christoph Kramer. Then Kramer had to be substituted out of the match in the 31st minute with what appeared to be a head injury. He was replaced by Andre Schurrle.

Germany won the title for the fourth time, but the first since 1990 when it was still West Germany. They had advanced to the semifinals in three straight World Cups prior to 2014 — once under current American head coach Jurgen Klinsmann — only to lose in the final in 2002 and take third place in both 2006 and 2010.

They finally broke that curse in Brazil.

Buchholz stars as Red Sox pound Astros to close out first half

The Red Sox closed out an up-and-down first half on a high note with a blowout victory over the Astros.

Clay Buchholz threw his first complete game of the season, and fifth shutout in his eight-year career. He finished with 12 strikeouts and just three hits allowed as he lowered his ERA to 5.42 in a disappointing season.

The Sox scored early and often off the Astros. Houston manager Bo Porter yanked starter Brad Peacock after just five batters, one out and 27 pitches, despite trailing just 1-0 on a leadoff home run by Brock Holt.

Anthony Bass didn't do much better, though he lasted 3 1/3 innings and allowed three runs (two earned).

Rookie catcher Christian Vazquez had two hits in his third game with the Red Sox since the team designated veteran A.J. Pierzynski for assignment on Thursday.

Holt ended up with likely the best game of his young career, going 5-for-6 with the homer and two runs scored. He was 10-for-15 with four runs scored in the three-game set in Houston.

The 26-year-old is a native of Stephenville,

Texas and went to college in Houston at Rice.

Holt has been one of the surprises of a disappointing first half for Boston. He improved his batting average to .327 on the season with 25 extra-base hits in just 61 games.

Boston improved to 43-52 on the season, winning four of five to close out the first half. But that came on the heels of losing seven of eight and putting themselves in a position where they might be a seller post All-Star break.

The Red Sox will play 13 of their first 16 games coming out of the All-Star break against AL East opponents. MARK OSBORNE
